

MAYOR PARK DENIES MAKING STATEMENTS

Refutes Certain Testimony
Given by Witness in Portola Cafe Hearing.

Hearings on the city's application for revocation of the license of the Portola cafe was concluded before Judge F. C. Lofthorow in the district court yesterday morning with the testimony of Mayor Samuel C. Park and E. Schuler, one of the owners of the cafe.

The mayor testified concerning conversations he had had with F. C. Blankenship, manager of the cafe, with reference to interpretations of the liquor law. He denied that he had told Blankenship that he could serve liquor without meals, as was testified by the defense Wednesday afternoon.

With reference to the matter of permitting women of questionable character to visit the cafe, the mayor admitted he had told Mr. Blankenship that so long as such women conducted themselves in orderly fashion there was no reason why they should not be served with food and drink, but if they made themselves conspicuous their patronage could not be tolerated.

The mayor said that Blankenship had called on him many times to talk about the operation of the cafe, and that he had frequently complained that he was being persecuted by the police.

"I told him," said the mayor, "that he would not be persecuted so long as he conformed reasonably with the law, and that the police would not rely on mere technicalities or a mere matter of five minutes or so in enforcing the law."

The mayor testified that Blankenship had admitted to him that he served liquor without meals, but he denied having told Blankenship that such practice would be allowed. He said he told Blankenship that the question of serving liquor without meals was a much mooted one and was still unsettled.

E. Schuler, who was present at one of the interviews between Blankenship and the mayor, corroborated the mayor's statements.

Arguments will be made in the case next Saturday morning.

PRODUCTIVE SEASON FOR STATE OF UTAH

The month of January, just passed, was abnormally cold east of the Missouri and Mississippi valleys and in the region of the great lakes, while the temperature in Utah and the Intermountain region was unusually warm for January. According to the weather report compiled yesterday by Section Director A. H. Thiesen of the local weather bureau, Salt Lake has been fortunate in having mild and pleasant weather for the first month of the year, and still there has been enough precipitation in the valleys and mountains to insure good crops for 1914.

The coldest place in the United States for January was Wilson, N. D., where the thermometer at one time registered 24 degrees below zero. Much snow was reported during the month in southern Idaho and eastern Oregon. The precipitation for the month was unusually heavy. Rain fell in nearly every valley in the state and heavy snows frequently blocked traffic on the county roads. The precipitation was greatest in Ogden, with 5.26 inches of rain and snow, and the lowest in Castledale, with 2.49 inches. Salt Lake registered a precipitation of 3.08. Provo 4.05, Levan 3.32 and Deseret 2.65.

At Los Angeles, Cal., it rained 10.35 inches for January, which was almost five times as much as the precipitation a year ago there and about three times the precipitation in Salt Lake this year.

Calling attention to the fact that mental efficiency is largely dependent upon physical health, Mme. Davenport declared that correct living eliminates mental and physical decrepitude and that in the course of 100 years it will be a crime to look old or be sick.

TO SEEK RAISING OF WEEVIL QUARANTINE

Montana and other western states will be asked to modify their regulations directed against Utah products alleged to carry the alfalfa weevil, according to an announcement yesterday by the State Horticultural society.

The society, together with the state horticultural inspector, will make strenuous efforts to convince the officials of other states that the pest in Utah has been largely wiped out through an extensive extermination campaign against the weevil.

Utah products are now admitted into Montana the latter half of the year, but prohibited the first half, because the weevil is believed to be more active during the spring and summer months. An effort will be made at the annual convention of the State Horticultural society in Murray, February 8, 9 and 10, to obtain permission from the Montana officials to allow Utah products to be shipped into Montana at all times during the year.

J. Edward Taylor, state inspector, and George L. Berman, of the United States bureau of entomology, are authorities for the fact that there is no longer any Utah products carrying the weevil.
